xSuite Appoints Jan Schulze as Head of Product Management

When it comes to filling management positions, the specialist for document-based processes successfully draws from its own ranks

January 18, 2023, Ahrensburg/Germany

Jan Schulze (30) has been put in charge of Product Management at xSuite Group as of 1 January 2023. The graduate in business informatics (FH Wedel) previously acted as Product Manager for the SAP portfolio of the internationally active software manufacturer. He joined xSuite in 2013.

In his new position, Jan Schulze will be in charge of the Product Management and Technical Documentation divisions at xSuite. Among other areas, Schulze's work will focus on managing projects relating to the strategic orientation of the company from a product-driven perspective. This involves the transfer of corporate goals into the product portfolio, responding to market requirements as well as monitoring and filtering market trends and taking them into account as needed.

In his role of Head of Product Management, Jan Schulze is responsible for various product management teams and for ensuring the smooth cooperation with software development. The common goal is to further develop software solutions for SAP and cloud environments in a consistent manner and with an eye to market needs. Schulze is also responsible for facilitating communication between the xSuite subsidiaries in Europe, Asia and the USA.

Jan Schulze, Head of Product Management

Under the leadership of Jan Schulze, a new offering model for companies was developed and launched on 1 January 2023, making all solutions available as a subscription service going forward. This service includes basic packages for the invoicing and procurement solution as well as premium packages that offer additional features.

The SAP-integrated xSuite software solutions have matured to version 5.2.9 and include applications for the digital and automated processing of invoices, purchase orders, order confirmations, delivery bills, orders as well as special applications for the public sector. The overall portfolio also offers solutions for archiving, contract management and a supplier portal. With xSuite, companies can choose whether they want to operate the solutions as cloud-based, hybrid or strictly as on-premises software.

Matthias Lemenkühler, CEO of xSuite Group: “We are putting our product management into very capable hands and are pleased that this position is being filled by someone from within our own ranks. Our company offers strong opportunities for development because we are constantly growing and evolving at a very fast pace – both technologically and in terms of personnel.”
